Our virtual short courses challenge and inspire young minds to better understand university subject options and the career paths beyond.

It is more challenging than ever to choose the right career path. The world of work is always changing, even more so now, accelerated by the global pandemic. Today's teenagers need all the help, guidance and support they can get to make the right choices.

That's where Stellar Graduates comes in. Our online, short courses, delivered by postgraduate tutors from Russell Group and Ivy League universities, give 15-17 year olds a practical taste of undergraduate studies and the careers they open up, helping young people make informed decisions about future options.
